Facets

Facata are the little dat planes on the Diamond and other precious stones that draw and reflect the Light and give Value and Fascino-tion to the stone itself. Expects will tell you that the Diamond in the rough is worth but from five to about fifty dollars a Karat, whereas after being cut and polished each Pacet brilliantly blazing its light, the Dismend becomes worth from one to five hundred dollars a Karat, or therenbout.

It is the Cutting and Polishing that jumps Diamond values.

A Human Being is often likened to a Diamond in the Rough. And those who stand out above others and draw The includion of make is purely others their way and who demand not cheshibation is another included and command Respect and Honor are tuose who have cut and polished the largest number of Facets from their natural human Worth in the Rough, All excellence results from Sweat and Effort. from the warming of healthy fillood and the speeding up of purposeful Heart throbs.

That man's life is worth most who realizes his Possibilities most. For the concealed, uncut Facets are the Possibilities. The larger the number of Facets, the greater is the brilliance of the Stone and the larger is its Value. Human society is made up of men and women whose Facets are at various stages of development.

Some hardly get away from the Bough. Others get as far as to the cutting of the Facets—but nover get down to the polishing business, while there are others whose Pacets show out into the world with marvelous eparale and wonder.

Ask yourself if your Pacets look brighter with each added day.

Your Talents, your Abilities, your possible Deeds are your Facets. But if they are not cut, evenly planed—

Pollshed, their Value, as far as the world is concerned might as well not exist. Do and its and Hump Your-self if you want your Facets to leap in Value and your life to count. Also, bear in mind that the heat cut stone is the one that most clearly shows. forth the Inner Worth of the stone.
